Introduction

Welcome to the first edition of the Eurojust newsletter, a new quarterly platform keeping judicial practitioners and our other partners up to date with recent developments at Eurojust and directing them to our latest publications. Each newsletter provides a snapshot of our recent work in the field as well as highlights from our schedule of events here in The Hague. You will also find links to recent reports, analysis and other interesting materials.

The first three months of 2019 have been busy on several levels. We have helped to coordinate critical criminal investigations across Europe and further afield, covering everything from cybercrime to sham marriages and money laundering. We also hosted a range of fascinating events. In the background, Eurojust has been advocating for a Europe-wide Digital Criminal Justice infrastructure. We see this as a crucial investment that would enable EU Agencies and Member States to safely exchange information by means of a robust, secure and encrypted digital system.

The new year has also brought a new look and feel: the new Eurojust visual identity and logo will be officially launched later this month, with the 2018 Annual Report offering the first glance of our new style. As part of this rebranding effort, we have also gone live with our new social media campaign across Twitter and LinkedIn, making keeping up to date on all of our activities here in The Hague easier than ever. I very much hope you enjoy reading our newsletter.
